

MR. JOYCE IS JOYFUL.

He Claims Proprietorship of the English Earthquake.

What the O'Donovan Rossa Circle Have to Say About the Recent British Commemorative Very Terrible Throat.

New York, April 24.—"We have been expecting this every day," joyfully remarked Patrick Joyce, right tower to O'Donovan Rossa, vigorously rubbing his hands in deep excess of satisfaction while he read the cable dispatch describing the effects of the earthquake in England.

"Has Mr. Rossa's scientific warfare anything to do with the disturbance?" was asked.

"I tell you we have been expecting it every day. I observe that England calls it an earthquake. We are not surprised that she should seek thus to prevaricate about the facts."

"Do you expect anything else?"

"Yes," cheerfully responded Joyce, the dynamite lieutenant; "we expect that something worse will happen tomorrow."

"Has Rossa yet expressed his sentiments on the event?"

"Mr. Rossa," responded Joyce, severely, "has no need to express his sentiments to you. He agrees with me that we don't want to say anything more than that we expect more and more terrible things to happen to England every day till Ireland is free. Therefore you need say nothing more than that we are in expectation."

A VILLAIN FOUND GUILTY.

GLANWORTH, April 23.—Peter O'Brien, charged with connection with nine Glasgow dynamites, sentenced some time since for causing the explosion of the Tradeston gasometer and blowing up a shed of the Caledonia Railroad station, had been found guilty and sentenced to eighteen months imprisonment. The Chief Constable received the letter this morning, in which the writer informed him his life had been forfeited for the activity he had displayed in his evidence to convict the dynamite, and stating that an avenger was on his track.

A COLOSSAL CRIMINAL TRIAL.

Three Hundred Prisoners and Twelve Hundred Witnesses.

NAPLES, April 24.—The most colossal criminal trial of modern times was to have begun to-day at Catania, in Sicily. No less than 300 prisoners were to be put on trial on charges of being members of the Mafia secret society, which has long been the most dangerous of the secret orders of the Irredentist nature and is supposed to combine brigandage with anarchy. Since the arrest of the prisoners an unexpected host of victims to the number of 1,000, have sent in their names to the prosecuting officers and offered to appear as witnesses. Many of the prisoners are wealthy and influential, and a small army of 12 lawyers have been engaged for their defense. The result of these extensive preparations is that the government has no public building big enough for the trial, and has been obliged to postpone them until June. The proceedings will then take place in the Benedictine Church, as the Court-house is entirely too small and the city jail is being enlarged by the building of a new wing to accommodate the unusual number of prisoners.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, April 23.—Wheat—The market was poorly supplied, and with a good milling demand was firm. Poor No. 3 red was held at $1 per bu. and prime at $1 05; No. 2 red would bring $1 05, and a sample of prime sold at that rate. Hard sold at 1 10½; No. 2 and laundry was quoted at $1 10½. Corn—There was no rejected or No. 2 mixed offered of consequence, and with a good distilling and meal market was strengthened for the better qualities. No. 3 mixed would sell at 56c; No. 2 mixed at 57½c; yellow shelled at 58½c, and No. 2 white was held at 56c. Corn held at 52½c, and to quality. Oats—Offerings were not numerous and the market was easier, with sales of regular No. 2 mixed at 30c, and regular No. 4 white and 30½c. Buyers bid 30½c for less, but sellers were slow to accept lower rates.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Markets were active and irregular, but general firm and higher, especially during the closing hour of the session, when the visible supply statement was posted, showing a decrease of 1,000,000 bushels in wheat, and 1,300,000 bushels in corn. Wheat opened active, but declined on free selling, and a lower range of prices on the New York. Later there was brisk buying, and the loss was more than regained, the market closing steadily at the advance. Corn was active and steady at the opening, but eased down later with wheat. Oats ruled steady. Wheat—Active firm and higher, at 90½c for April; 87½c May; 85½c June; 81½c July. Corn—Firm and higher at 52c for May; 50½c June; 50½c July.
